

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

Krista Cowman is based at the University of York.

Emmeline Garnett is a retired teacher with varied interests in the history of the Lune valley.

Paul Green took his degree in history and religious studies at Chester College and is now a student mental health nurse at the University of North Wales, Bangor.

Janet Hollinshead teaches history at Liverpool Hope University College and is treasurer of the Historic Society of Lancashire and Cheshire.

Robert Lewis conducted research into the social history of football for his Ph.D. at Lancaster University and is now a librarian at Manchester Central Library.

Graham Rogers teaches history at Edge Hill College of Higher Education.

David Shotter teaches Roman history at Lancaster University.

Jon Stobart teaches historical geography at Staffordshire University. His interests include regional urban and economic development and retailing in the early modern period.

Keith Sugden is keeper of numismatics at the Manchester Museum.

Alan Thacker, formerly editor of the Victoria History of Cheshire, is now deputy editor of the Victoria County History, based at the Institute of Historical Research, London.

Maurice Whitehead was educated at St Francis Xavier's College, Liverpool, and at the universities of Durham, Cambridge, and Hull. He is currently a senior lecturer in education at Hull.